

ABSTRACT

A brake lining wear indicator includes a connection for an external wear sensor, a power source for powering the wear sensor, an electronic processing device that is connected to a connection and a first and second display device connected to the electronic processing device, wherein the first display device has a continuous wear indicator for at least one brake lining and the second display device has at least one function display for the brake.